County spared fury of Hurricane Opal

BY RICHARD MEEK

Although it appeared Hancock County was going to be spared the fury of dangerous Hurricane Opal, government officials were taking no chances.

Evacuation centers were opened early Wednesday morning at Hancock High School, Bay Middle School, Methodist Day Care Center and Hotel Reed Nursing Center.

Schools and government offices were closed Wednesday, as well as Port Bienville Industrial Park and Stennis Space Center. Waveland City Hall was closed early Wednesday morning.

The county shut down at 10 a.m., Bay St. Louis City Hall at noon.

"This is a scary, and dangerous storm," Hancock County Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin told a gathering of governmental officials Wednesday morning in Bay St. Louis.

"The best news is that it appears it will go east," he said. "That puts us on the best side of the storm."

"I don't think this storm will hurt us but we must be prepared. As long as (government officials) stay together, there is nothing we can't handle."

As of midday Wednesday,

Pensacola, Fla., appeared to be Opal's target. The storm intensified quickly Tuesday night, and varied slightly from its northeast path to a more north-northeast direction.

As of Wednesday morning, Opal was packing sustained winds of 150 miles per hour, putting it on the verge of a Category 5 hurricane. Category 5 storms begin at 156 miles per hour. Hurricane Camille, which devastated the Gulf Coast in August of 1969, was also a Category 5 storm.

The path Opal was tracking Wednesday would place the eye, which is only eight miles receive winds of "35 to 40 miles per hour."

Pass elects, swears in mayor

BY ED LEPOMA

Because of the threat of Hurricane Opal, Billy McDonald was sworn in Wednesday as new Mayor of Pass Christian.

McDonald won a special election Tuesday over two opponents to fill the unexpired term of Mayor Ted Lawyer, who resigned Aug. 30 due to medical reasons.

Circuit Judge Jason Floyd hurried to City Hall Wednesday to administer the oath of office to McDonald, with the city's Aldermen witnessing the ceremony.

"Because of the emergency situation (the hurricane), we thought it was best to have a Mayor in charge," said McDonald.

He said an official swearingin ceremony would be scheduled within a week to 10 days.

Two years ago voters had rejected McDonald and elected Lawyer to a second four-year term. This time the veteran politician was elected over Ward 2 Alderman Margaret Jean Kalif and Joe Kelly, a young lawyer and a political newcomer.

Voter turnout was estimated at 40 percent, and was considered heavy since this was a spe-

Jumping ship

Casino Magic workers and visitors were rather stunned last Friday afternoon when a 6 1/2 to seven-foot alligator came out of the Marina and began to walk across Casino Magic Drive. Maintenance workers scrambled to lasso the gator, and babysat him in the back of a truck until representatives from the Bureau of Marine Resources could come to pick him up. Casino Magic employees named the gator "Joe," feeling he may have jumped ship from another Hancock County casino. (Echo staff photo by Ed Lepoma)

Bay to keep transit service

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis city officials agreed Tuesday to cut back on trolley service, heeding a warning that City Council was poised to make a "serious mistake" by dropping the program.

The action keeps trolleys on the road locally Mondays through Saturdays, and drops Sunday service. In addition, council agreed to eliminate the late-night trolley runs that have attracted the fewest riders, dropping an 11 p.m. run. The last trolleys will make 9:30 p.m. stops.

While council approved the new schedule, by a 3-2 vote, it did so only for a six-month period and with the agreement that Coast Transit Authority officials will try to add a number of stops to the route, including local hotels.

Keeping the trolley on track, at an annual cost of $43,600, assures that the city will receive an $11,000 CTA grant toward costs of building a new comfort station-welcome center, council was told by Robert Travers. Last month, council approved a budget containing more than $63,000 for next year's CTA services.

Travers, a locally-appointed commissioner on the CTA board, has been named interim director of CTA. He advised council of that appointment before Tuesday's meeting, saying only that director Ted Hearn has taken a leave of absence.

Last week, Hearn appeared before council to suggest that some excess service could be trimmed from the local transit service, without dropping the program entirely. He promised to provide council with detailed figures on area ridership.

Those figures were offered Tuesday by Travers, who said CTA staffers had physically counted tickets to determine CTA ridership in Hancock County.

In July and August, he said, the local trolley saw an average of 62 riders per day. On an annual basis, that amounts to some 19,500 riders on Monday

Paint fumes causing problems at Gulfview Elementary School

BY TRACI BONNEY

For Gulfview Elementary student Brandy LeBlanc, school so far this year has been a real pain — and it hasn't been much better for her parents.

Brandy's parents addressed the school board at its regular meeting Monday evening and explained to the board trustees how their daughter, diagnosed an asthmatic, has suffered because of fumes from the commercial epoxy paint used to repaint the school this summer following spring flood and rain damage.

Mrs. LeBlanc chronicled the trouble she and her husband have had during the first month of school, as they have taken Brandy to school only to withdraw her later in the day because she was reporting headaches, dry heaves and breathing problems.

"The school looks great," Mrs. LeBlanc said several times during her address, "but I'm afraid to put my daughter back in there because apparently the school wasn't aired properly before school started."

She said she had checked with some of the painters involved in the work, as well as local paintretailers, and all told her that with the paint used on the school, an airing time — with doors and windows open, not just using air conditioning units — of at least 30 days was needed to remove the fumes sufficiently.

Mrs. LeBlanc said that the times she went to the school to withdraw Brandy, she found the fumes irritating to her own respiratory system, and she noticed that other students at the nurse's station were complaining of headaches and breathing problems as well.

She explained to the board that taking Brandy to another school, as it had been suggested she do, was not feasible at the beginning of the school year because of her job situation.

It is still not feasible, because now she is looking for a new job. "My former employer was not at all sympathetic to my situation, and did not like my having to come in late and leave early to take Brandy and pick her up, so I lost my job."

"My husband could not transport her at the beginning of the year because of his work. Since school started, he was in an accident and is now disabled. Some days are better than others for him, but most days he can't even drive to the store."

She told the board she had noticed that the school was aired out last week, but she reiterated that the airing should have occurred prior to the opening of the school year, and she maintained that she knew it had not been adequately aired because she lives near Gulfview and monitored the painting activity.

Mrs. LeBlanc said she has requested that she be able to either withdraw Brandy to home school her, or that the school district supply her with a home tutor under the homebound/disabled student (504) program. She had scheduled a meeting with the district's special education director, Arlene Shambach, but that meeting was postponed and had yet to be rescheduled as of Monday evening; the two women were supposed to talk about it by phone Tuesday morning.

Mrs. LeBlanc finished by saying she was requesting a home tutor under the 504 program, as well as assistance from the district with medical bills incurred because of the paint fumes. She told the board that Brandy, who normally can control her asthma with preventive treatments at home, has had to visit the doctor several times in the last month; has had such an increase in her medication that the school nurse was hesitant to allow her to take her medicine in school; and even had to be hospitalized for a couple of days when one severe attack didn't respond to the doctor's treatments.

Board president Cheryl Bennett thanked Mr. and Mrs. LeBlanc for bringing their problem to the board. She explained that they needed to consult with their attorney before committing to any financial assistance; she also asked that the LeBlancs contact Shambach and set up the necessary meeting for the 504 program request.

Bennett said the board hoped to be able to give the LeBlancs some definite answers by their next meeting, which is a recess meeting Monday, Oct. 23, 4:30 p.m., at the district office.

They took out all the tables at the Boots Cabaret in Biloxi's Boomtown Casino last week.

Pass Christian's own Bryan Austin was in town for a two-night, four-show gig. And he didn't disappoint.

Austin, whose surname was Cuevas before Nashville advised him to change it, packed the house for all four shows last Wednesday and Thursday nights, casino officials said. With only booth seating left against the back wall, the cabaret put out folding seats so the room could hold about 300 fans at each show.

Austin, who grew up in the Kiln community, started out playing saxophone in his uncle's band when he was only eight years old. By the age of 12, he had formed his own band, Mississippi Pride. Another uncle financed his first demo tape, and he began knocking on doors in Nashville when he was 17.

He and his Texas Flat Band shook the rafters at Michael's on Highway 49 in Gulfport, playing six nights a week for three years.

Austin, 28, went solo and moved to Nashville about five years ago after record producer Diane Gibson heard him play, and arranged a showcase for Austin to perform with other promising talent in Nashville.

The CEO of EMI records, Charles Koppelman, got Austin together with Jimmy Bowen, now president of Capitol Records. Bowen liked what he heard and signed Austin to a record/writing deal under the Patriot label, a new recording company he was forming.

He also arranged for Keith Stegall to produce Austin's first album. Stegall has produced Alan Jackson and Randy Travis.

In the summer of 1994, Austin made his national debut in an album entitled "Bryan Austin," released on the Patriot label.

"Radioactive," one of the tunes on that album, made it to the top of the charts and is still played widely by radio stations, especially on the Mississippi Coast.

Since the release of his album, Austin has been profiled by major trade magazines, including Music City News.

Austin has toured the United States in over 115 dates since then, and has been the opening act in tours headlined by John Anderson, Tracy Lawrence, Shenandoah, and Patty Loveless.

When The Echo caught up with him at Boomtown, Austin had just come off a tour in the Pacific. Bobby Roberts, his booking agent, sent him to two military bases in Okinawa, Japan. He was the opening act for Conway Twitty's son, Michael Twitty.

A month before, Austin played at military bases in Germany, Italy and Turkey. Usually, the tours are open to select members of the local community, too, he said.

"The Germans are still watching the old Roy Rogers movies, and they showed up in cowboy boots and chaps, with six-shooters at their side," said Austin. "They were a hoot, but very appreciative."

Lately, Austin said he is "getting serious" about writing more. On his debut album, he wrote "All Dressed Up," and "Long Walk Back." At his Biloxi shows, he treated the audience to one of his newest tunes, "Down in Biloxi."

He's also proud to showcase his guitar-playing talent, and played lead guitar on an album due out in October by Steve Wariner and the Young Guns. Others on the album include Brian White on drums; Derek George, lead guitar with the Pearl River group, and Jeffrey

Steele, the lead singer for Boy Howdy, who plays bass.

Austin has appeared on the Coast before at Casino Magic in Bay St. Louis. He was the opening act for the recent Charlie Daniels concert.

He said he doesn't have too much time to look up old friends when he comes to the Coast, but it's always a treat to come back home.

His biggest fans were in the audience, too: parents Gerald and Elsie Cuevas, sisters Karla and Chesaka. Three friends from the Coast also play backup for him. They are drummer Tommy Noland from Gulfport, Jerry Owen on the keyboard, and Rick McGill on bass, both from Long Beach.

After his Boomtown engagement, Austin headed back to Nashville. He'll still perform wherever and whenever his agent books him, but says he wants to concentrate more on a writing deal.

"I'm negotiating, but it's too early to say anything yet," he said.

There's also a new love interest for Austin, who is twice divorced and has two daughters.

"She's an executive with Capitol Records," he volunteers.

Is marriage in sight? "You'll be one of the first to know," said Austin. "And Brett Favre."

Favre was two years behind Austin in high school and remains his friend.

"I'll ask him to be my best man," said Austin.

Citizen charges Bay sidestepped ordinances

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A Bay St. Louis resident Tuesday charged that City Council and the administration have sidestepped city ordinances to expedite Casino Magic's golf course construction.

Franya Ethridge, a frequent observer of council meetings, told council the golf course should have been subjected to a major site plan review process, but was not. And, said Ethridge, portions of the course are being constructed in an R-1 (residential) zone, although the zoning code doesn't provide for such a facility in that zone.

Mayor Eddie Favre said he'd made the decision to allow Casino Magic to proceed with the project, assuming that all requirements for site plan reviews had been met. Perhaps, he added, that was a "false assumption."

The issue arose after the city's tree protection advisor, Philip Remel, made another appearance concerning Casino Magic's removal of trees on the golf course tract. Remel is objecting that he's been circumventing in enforcing the ordinance, since Favre placed the city building official, Bill Carriage, in charge of reviewing the removal of trees during construction.

Favre said he took that step in light of a "conflict of interest" Remel has -- he has served as a consultant to Casino Magic on tree matters.

While the debate on the tree issue continued Tuesday night, officials seemed to have made no progress in resolving it. Remel, who has offered to resign over the issue, said Casino Magic should seek a variance from the city tree protection ordinance, given the removal of significant numbers of trees from the golf course site.

Council members, however, said since no such variance has been sought, they had nothing to act upon Tuesday night.

Ethridge, meanwhile, appeared to have made a point or two with council members. "Basically, council hasn't voted on a site plan review as we see it being constructed now," council president Tad Black said of the golf course.

Casino Magic did go through that process much earlier, said Black, before the Corps of Engineers forced a major scale-down and reconfiguration of the golf course.

Favre, meanwhile, said while a commercial golf course isn't listed as an allowable activity in an R-1 zone, the facility is "along those lines" of allowable uses.

"Not that anybody minds, but you have your ordinances, and you have your zoning official. It shouldn't have come to this," said Ethridge. "That's all I have to say."

Council member Charles Scianna quipped that if Ethridge had been present at all City Council meetings, "this probably wouldn't have happened."

In other business, council authorized issuance of a notice for construction to proceed on restoration of the depot on Railroad Avenue. The project is being financed, mostly, with a federal Department of Transportation grant.

Officials said Tuesday work will begin on the project no later than Oct. 16.

PERS statements to be mailed

Fiscal year statements for 1994-95 will be mailed to the home addresses of 180,000 active and inactive members of the Public Employees' Retirement System (PERS) of Mississippi October 6. Statements include information concerning member accounts as of June 30.

Active members are employees of agencies covered by PERS who have contributions to the Retirement System withheld from paychecks. They include employees of the state, public school districts, cities, counties, Institutions of Higher Learning, community colleges, public libraries, water districts and other governmental agencies.

For the first time this year, statements also will be mailed to inactive members for whom PERS has home addresses. Inactive members are former employees who left their contributions with the Retirement System when they left employment with a covered agency.

Any active or inactive member who does not receive a statement by November 1 should contact PERS by calling 1-800-444-PERS (7377) toll free.

If information on the statement concerning a member's name, date of birth, Social Security number, membership service years or prior service years needs to be corrected, the member should complete the Record Change card included with the statement and mail it back to PERS in an envelope, using the address on the statement.

To change a beneficiary, fill out a PERS Form 1, available through employer personnel offices or from PERS.

A change of address for an active member should be reported to the personnel and payroll offices of the member's employer, with instructions to notify PERS on the agency's Wage & Contributions Report. Inactive members who do not receive statements are urged to contact PERS at the telephone number listed above to provide an address.

Other information, including the semi-annual PERS Member Newsletter, also is mailed to inactive members, if PERS has a home address.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Well, we won the war again. The BIG ONE. Remember WWII?

As we have done every two years or so for the last dozen years, we shipmates of the U.S.S. Stephen Potter, DD 538, get together, retell old sea stories, and renew friendships. Those of us from World War II are thankfully now joined by some of those who were recommissioned the Potter during the Korean War and took her to sea another year or two.

The "young" group from the Korean era, of course, don't have the same experiences to share, but they have brought some new vitality to our association and are superbly compatible with the "old" guys. They were the ones who put together this year's reunion, here in the Northeast.

Those of us who took the Steaming P to sea in WWII, chased the Japanese all over the Pacific for two years, thankfully brought her back in one piece and decommissioned her in December, 1945. She was brought out of mothballs in 1951 for Korea and then put back out of commission in 1953. Sometime afterwards, the once sleek, darting naval destroyer (at least we thought so) was sold to Greece, presumably turned into scrap.

This being the 50th anniversary of a lot of things that were important in my life—VE Day, the dropping of the first atomic bomb on Japan, and VJ Day—I want to make a few personal points.

One, VE Day, signalling an end to the war in Europe, did not mean the end of the war for those of us in the Pacific. We had some of our worst days after the war ended in Europe.

Next, I don't think any of us on the Potter would quarrel with President Truman's decision to drop the atomic bomb. At the time, we had just been brought to Mare Island, California, for overhaul to go back for the invasion of Japan. Dropping the bomb, we felt then, and do now feel, could have very well saved our lives.

In the latter months of the Pacific War, as we brought the war closer to the Japanese homeland, destroyers became one of the favorite targets of Kamikazi suicide pilots. In fact, 56 destroyers were either badly damaged or sunk by Kamikazis diving into them during April, May and June of 1945 near Okinawa.

U.S.S. Stephen Potter shipmates gather again

nawa. Almost all of the destroyers were caught out on picket duty when they were detached from the main body of ships.

And, of course, there was the mammoth typhoon which caught our task force, commanded by Adm. William F. Halsey, at the end of 1944, while the fleet was refueling at sea in the South China Sea. That event annihilated the long-held theory that American destroyers would not capsize in a severe ocean. Three of our fellow destroyers went down in the typhoon, with a loss of 790 lives.

The U.S.S. Spence, the same type of destroyer as ours, and the closest to us in position, had snapped the fuel lines in the raging sea as she tried to fuel, and being left with little water ballast became a sitting duck in the screaming wind and water. When she went down, only 23 of her 330-man crew were later rescued. The two other destroyers who went down—the Hull and the Monaghan—were of a smaller tonnage and a different design, and we always thought a little top-heavy.

Our guys who came here to Boston still gave thanks to the Lord that our ship managed to get enough fuel on board before the fuel lines parted in the teeth of the typhoon, and that she quickly drew enough water ballast to ride out the storm.

We had the unexpected pleasure at the Boston reunion of having as our guests several descendants of Stephen Potter, the first Naval aviator to be shot down in World War I (it took seven Germans to do it). A great-nephew of Potter's, Jonathan Potter of Bennington, Vermont, whom I was delighted to meet, is a young newspaper reporter.

We couldn't come to this part of the country and not visit the cradle of the nation, follow the route of the ride of Paul Revere and the Freedom Battle Trail from Lexington to Concord, where the American Revolution began. It is a thrilling experience to see the Lexington Common, where a handful of patriots stood up to the British and where "the Shot Heard 'Round the World" was fired. And then to stand on the Old North Bridge at nearby Concord where the rag-tag patriots first tasted victory.

What struck me was the remarkable absence of commercialism, signs, etc., and the subdued atmosphere of this truly historic area. It makes you wonder if we could do the same, if all of it were down here.

Sad memories of hurricanes

1947 Hurricane

Beach Boulevard, Bay St. Louis was completely gone in many sections following the 1947 Hurricane. This photo was taken near the head of Ulman Avenue. (Echo file photos)

Hurricane Camille

Mauffray's Hardware Store, Beach Boulevard, Bay St. Louis took a severe blow from a strong 1969 Hurricane Camille. The majority businesses as well as residences were either destroyed or damaged.

Hurricane Betsy

In 1965 Hurricane Betsy struck Hancock County with a glancing blow after causing severe damage and flooding in the City of New Orleans. Many residences received wind damage and those in low areas of Hancock County suffered flooding.

Hurricane Elena

Hancock County received wind damages from Hurricane Elena in 1985. Several trees and utility poles were felled by the hurricane's glance of the area. Photo shows utility poles on Necaise Avenue next to the St. Stanislaus stadium.

Waveland City Hall

Waveland's City Hall took a battering from wind and water during Hurricane Camille in 1969. City employees did manage to post an American flag to show the city would bounce back. (Echo file photos).

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Last Thursday an Operation Life Saver group handed out literature at two Bay St. Louis CSX Railroad crossings urging the use of caution at rail crossings.

Most of you know, in recent years there appears to have been an increase in the number of vehicles colliding with trains along the Coast.

Operation Life Saver's main goal is to eliminate railroad crossing accidents.

I can remember the "Stop, Look, Listen," instruction from my parents when I was a youngster, as we lived only two blocks from a railroad crossing.

The southern section of Hancock County was developed around and near the railroad, which was the lifeblood of the community.

Transportation in Hancock County depended upon the railroad before and after the turn of the century, as the only other alternative was water between here and New Orleans. Yes, there was a land route, but it was a mighty long distance.

Operation Life Saver volunteers, who are members of the Gulf Coast Model Railroad Club, and CSX employees urge each and everyone of you to be extremely careful at railroad crossings.

Remember, Operation Life Saver urges you to ... Look! Listen and Live!

I have a feeling my good friends Harold and Alice Masson are getting a pretty good boat ride this week.

They boarded the Enchanted Seas last Saturday afternoon for a cruise in the Gulf.

I am sure they got into some bumpy water along the way because of Hurricane Opal.

Being the veterans they are of sea travel, I am hoping everything goes well for them.

I will be awaiting a good story from them when they return.

Several big happenings are scheduled for Saturday. Among them is a Patrons Party for A Place of Art IV in Bay St. Louis.

It is to be held at Our Lady of the Gulf's new Community Center, South Beach Boulevard, from 7 to 10 p.m.

This is a promotion of art and artists in Bay St. Louis. As many of you know, we have many very talented folks in the area.

The Hancock County Democrats Beans and Greens annual dinner is set Saturday at the Civic Center from noon to 3 p.m.

Entertainment is set with music by Keith Hoda and The County Sounds.

The Hancock County Republican Party's 18th Annual Cookout is scheduled for Saturday from 3 to 5 p.m.

The Republican gala is to be held at the Dr. and Mrs. Andy Martinovich residence, 599 Suebe St., Bay St. Louis. Music is to be by Bill Johnson's band.

The Democratic Beans and Greens and Republican Cookout are two places to meet county party leaders and many of the candidates who will be on the ballot in the November general election. This will give you an opportunity to meet and chat with them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Students exceed grade level in multi-age classrooms

Dear Editor:

The recent letter from the parent regarding the North Bay Elementary Primary Unit Non-Graded Program prompted this letter.

As the parents of three children who have attended both private and public schools, and both of us having child welfare professional experience, we strongly support this educational approach.

My youngest child is in her third year of the primary unit. Her teacher was recently one of the recipients of the National Teachers' Award.

We have no doubt, and have evidence, that our child has learned much more than the fundamentals. The educational environment offered by the program was a missed opportunity for our older children.

The critical thinking skills and problem-solving abilities nurtured in our child will have a long-lasting effect on her.

This program has not only stimulated her love of knowledge, but given her the opportunity to far exceed her grade level.

Students are encouraged to learn and to assist their peers. These values greatly appeal to us and deserve commendation for both teachers and administrators.

Sincerely,
Illona and Danny Jones
Bay St. Louis

Student approves use of primary units at area schools

Dear Editor:

The letter that I encountered in the newspaper about the primary unit is not true. This is my fourth year at North Bay and my third year in the primary unit. I think they should have primary units at every school in the country. I think it is a very brilliant idea.

I did this on my home PC. I am 8 years old. I am in the 3rd year level.

Circus coming to USM

The University of Southern Mississippi soon will be the temporary home of seven elephants, eight tigers, nine clowns and one five-story, 3,000-seat tent.

All this and more is coming to Hattiesburg Oct. 9-10 when USM's Equestrian Center sponsors a visit by the 11-year-old Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers Circus, which bills itself as the world's oldest circus under the "big top."

Elephants will raise the circus' canvas tent while workers set up from 7 a.m. to noon Monday, Oct. 9, on USM's Sports Arena Field, next to M. M. Roberts Stadium. The public is invited.

Highlights include the tigers and their choreographer, trapeze artists, a human cannonball, tight-rope walkers, performing elephants and more.

The circus will present two shows each day, at 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Advance tickets are on sale now at USM's Payne Center, the information center at Turtle Creek Mall, and Tom and Calico Cat in Hattiesburg and Laurel.

Tickets are $10 for adults (ages 13-61) and $6 for children (12 and younger) and senior citizens (62 and older).

USM students, faculty and staff can purchase tickets for $6 at the Payne Center. Free tickets for children are available to participating merchants in Turtle Creek Mall while they last. There's an additional $2 charge for reserved seats.

By Lora Mederos
Greetings from the Hancock County Senior Citizens program.

In keeping with the fall tradition of changing, we will add two new faces to our staff and some new classes for October. Our new faces are two wonderful volunteers: Eddie Boyd, who was formerly with the craft department at Wal-Mart, and Rosa Almond, who is a semi-retired registered nurse.

The new classes will start October 11, 12 and 13, so be sure to sign up in advance as space is limited.

Eddie will teach two arts and crafts classes on Wednesdays, 9-11 a.m. and 12-2 p.m., and on Thursdays a seasonal class, 12-2 p.m. Rose will teach an arts and crafts class Friday mornings, 9-11 a.m. Please help us to give these ladies a big welcome.

Thanks to these volunteers and all of the other men and women who presently and previously volunteered their time and skills, so we may continue to have a successful program.

Our hats off to all our many wonderful volunteers. You have been, you are, and we hope you will continue to remain an invaluable asset to our program.

And don't forget, the Senior Citizens program has many other services to offer, i.e.: Senior Center, congregate and home-delivered meals, homemaker referrals, transportation, and information and referral. For more information, please call our office at 467-9292, or stop in and sign up, 301 Old Spanish Trail (the old Valena C. Jones complex).

cial election, and candidates had little time to get their views over to voters.

About 1,485 turned out at four different voting precincts, and another 57 voted by absentee.

Although City Hall was closed due to the threat of Hurricane Opal, the Pass-Christians Election Commission met at City Hall early Wednesday morning to certify the results.

Complete returns showed McDonald received 958 votes or 62 percent; Kalif with 303 votes or 20 percent; and Kelly with 281 votes or 18 percent.

McDonald told the Echo he assembled a good organization, and his supporters worked extremely hard.

"We campaigned the old-fashioned way—door-to-door, and eyeball-to-eyeball," he said.

He said his past experience serving on the Harrison County Board of Supervisors helped him achieve the victory.

"The People of Pass Christian have a lot of trust in me, and I promise, I won't let them down," McDonald said.

McDonald, 59, represented Harrison County's Third District from 1976 to 1988, and also served as Board president and President of the Mississippi Association of Supervisors.

He was among supervisors investigated, but never charged in the 1980's when federal agents launched a statewide operation to look into allegations that some supervisors accepted kickbacks.

After that, McDonald ran twice for Southern District Highway Commissioner, but failed. He also tried unsuccessfully to reclaim his District 3 supervisor's seat, then was defeated in the race for Mayor against Lawyer.

Kalif, a Pass Christian native who teaches in the Gulfport School System, was first elected to a four-year term on Pass Christian's Board of Aldermen in 1989, representing Ward 2, and re-elected in 1993. It was her first run citywide.

She was disappointed, but poised in defeat Tuesday night.

"The voters have spoken. I congratulate Mr. McDonald," said Kalif. "I will work with him for the good of the people of Pass Christian."

Kelly, 33, had never run for public office before. At campaign appearances, Kelly told voters he decided to run "to take the Mayor's office out of the hands of professional politicians."

The term McDonald was elected to fill expires in July of 1997, and he has promised to gain a consensus with the Board of Aldermen, who have split into factions during Lawyer's leave of absence, and subsequent resignation.

During Lawyer's absence, city finances were shaky, and have been monitored for months by state auditors.

Aldermen recently passed a property tax millage to finance its 1995-1996 budget, and the new mayor may have his own spending priorities in mind once he takes a look at the budget that was adopted.

Transit

through Saturday in Hancock County last year, he said.

Council member James Thriffley said the ridership figures were "unbelievably impressive," compared to the usage level he's observed. "I'm astounded with these numbers."

Travers, however, insisted the figures were accurate, and he said dropping the service altogether would be a devastating blow to downtown businesses.

Himself a Main Street merchant, Travers said trolley riders spend money in local shops and restaurants, in addition to Casino Magic.

Council president Tad Black several times argued that the trolley should service customers at Bay St. Louis inns and motels, rather than the Wave-land Resort Inn. Travers promised that staff would reevaluate the routing to include, where possible, more stops at in-city accommodations and businesses.

Travers also assured council he would make a push for funding from Hancock County Board of Supervisors -- when the new board is seated in January. Travers said all attempts to lure the county into participation have failed in the past, but CTA officials will continue seeking a county appropriation.

While Thriffley challenged the head-count figures offered Tuesday night, it was council member Charles Scianna who urged that the trolley service be eliminated.

He said he'd had some two dozen phone calls on the issue, including only two from citizens who want to retain the services. "The majority of people are very upset we would be party to a system costing so much for so few," said Scianna.

Making a motion to eliminate the program, Scianna said there's no point in "prolonging the agony" through discussion. "I commend you for a good job, but you're just trying to push water uphill and that's an impossible task," said Scianna.

Scianna said the national mood favors cutbacks, and added that he's a firm believer in conservatism.

When Scianna later likened public transit to subsidized housing, council member Tom Farve called for a vote on Scianna's motion. Scianna said he should be allowed to finish commenting on the subsidy issue -- but Farve insisted that the vote be taken.

"I've had enough of this," said Farve. "If I want to tell you, I'll tell you to shut up," said Farve to Scianna, who had said the service amounts to a "no-win situation for Bay St. Louis."

Thriffley joined Scianna in voting against continuing the service. Council member James Rutherford spoke up in favor of continuing the service, saying he'd had no constituent calls to stop it. "We've got to look at how this affects business," Rutherford said, saying council should continue to program for at least another year.

Travers said officials expect ridership to increase gradually, on an annual basis, but he warned that the winter months traditionally see a drop off in ridership.

surge (Wednesday afternoon when the storm passes near the mouth of the Mississippi River)," Boudin said. "But by (Wednesday night) we will have a negative tide."

County officials did not declare an emergency but preparations were made in case that became necessary. Boudin added that no evacuations were ordered. He said some roads may take on water but no widespread flooding was expected.

He admitted that if Opal would take a more northerly turn and strike Mobile or even further west, then "that will be a problem."

And then there's the fun part - washing your animal and each other, as Kanaly Slade demonstrates to Cheramie Martin.

Grooming is a big part of showing, as Ron Ladner gets his animal ready.

Kanaly Slade wins first place in Showmanship. To his left are 4-H leaders Pat and Wade Ladner.

Dickie Joe Ladner lends a hand to Kanaly Slade and Cheramie Martin while Joleen Ladner is also getting ready for show.

College Football Highlights

For Oct. 7

The Ohio State Buckeyes may or may not be looking forward to their return to Penn State's Beaver Stadium this Saturday. Last Halloween weekend in State College, Pa., the Nittany Lions blew the Buckeyes away, 63-14. Ohio State's worst defeat in 48 years and its third-worst of the century. (The Buckeyes lost big twice to Michigan, 86-0 in 1902 and 58-6 in '46.) Penn State's lead was 35-0 at the half, and before it was over Ki-Jana Carter had scored four TDs; Kerry Collins had thrown for two more; and Penn State had racked up 572 yards of offense.

This year, once again, both teams have been punishing their opponents, but Penn State coach Joe Paterno has said more than once that his team isn't, and shouldn't be expected to be, as overpowering as it was in '94. What better way to both take some pressure off and motivate a team? If there's anyone better at it in college ball than Paterno, we haven't seen him. The Nittany Lions will win a hard-fought game by five points.

In Tallahassee, Fla., we'll get a chance to see how much heart the Miami Hurricanes have when they battle Florida State. Last year in the Orange Bowl, Miami handed the Seminoles their only loss, 34-20, holding FSU to 47 yards of rushing while intercepting Seminole QB Danny Kanell three times and sacking him twice.

This year, though, the Hurricanes have stumbled — most recently losing to Virginia Tech, as we predicted, two weeks ago. Florida State will beat Miami for only the third time in the past 11 years, but the only question seems to be: By how much? We say 27 points.

In a huge Southeastern Conference matchup, Louisiana State should stay closer to Florida than usual in Baton Rouge, La., though that's not saying much. In their last two meetings, the Gators have battered the Tigers by a combined score of 100-21. But LSU's running game is better than it's been in years; the defense is as strong as ever; and the players are taking to new head coach Gerry DiNardo's commando coaching style. Just ask Auburn. Florida will win, but only by eight.

Three near-tossups: Texas A&M at Texas Tech, Tennessee at Arkansas, and Notre Dame at Washington. Texas A&M likes to run, and Texas Tech defends best against the run. The Arkansas defense, too, will give Tennessee all it can handle. And the Huskies and the Fighting Irish haven't met since 1949. Who knows?

NFL Forecast for Sunday and Monday Oct. 8-9

**Buffalo, 25-N.Y. Jets, 18

(Sunday) The Bills lost to the Jets twice last year, 23-3 at home and 22-17 in N.Y. — the Jets' first sweep of Buffalo since '86. The Bills' secondary will keep N.Y.'s pass-oriented offense in check.

**Chicago, 32-Carolina, 16

Though they're not exactly an offensive juggernaut, the Bears won't meet much resistance in the virtually defenseless Panthers. With a week's rest, Chicago may just break this one wide open.

Cincinnati, 24-Tampa Bay, 20

This should be a good game, matching the Bengals' resurgent offense against the Buccaneers' improving D. Cincinnati has won three of the four times they've played, most recently 56-23 in '89.

Cleveland, 27-Detroit, 19

Whether the Lions can stay with the Browns may depend largely on Detroit's pass defense, which has been the team's only real strength thus far. The Lions won their last battle, in '92, 24-14.

**Dallas, 34-Green Bay, 21

Embroiled in a tighter divisional race, the Packers need a win more than the Cowboys, but they'll have to stop the league's best rushing attack. Dallas whopped G.B. 35-9 in the '94 playoffs.

**Miami, 35-Indianapolis, 26

Look for Dan Marino and Jim Harbaugh to fill the air with footballs, because neither pass defense can stop them. Last year the Dolphins beat the Colts in Miami, 22-12, then lost 10-6 in Indy.

**Minnesota, 21-Houston, 14

The up-and-down Vikings are fully capable of losing to anybody on any given weekend, and so far the Oilers are better at Minnesota's own game, defense. Houston beat the Vikings 17-13 in '92.

**New England, 26-Denver, 23

These two teams haven't met in four years, but the Broncos have won seven in a row against the Patriots since '80. The future legend, Drew Bledsoe, will outgun the current one, John Elway.

**N.Y. Giants, 12-Arizona, 9

A few field goals may account for all the points in this one, and not because of the Giants' and Cardinals' stellar defenses. In '94 N.Y. beat Arizona 20-17 in Phoenix, then lost 10-9 in N.Y.

**Oakland, 28-Seattle, 18

Last year the Seahawks routed the Raiders in L.A., 38-9, after eight straight losses in the series; then the Raiders won 17-16 in Seattle. Oakland is running well and playing better defense.

**Philadelphia, 29-Washington, 17

The Eagles have won five in a row over the Redskins — 21-17 and 31-29 in '94. So far Washington has been better on the ground and through the air, but Philadelphia's D should even things out.

Pittsburgh, 30-Jacksonville, 13

On the bright side, the Jaguars have an okay running game, but that's all they have, and it's not enough against the Steeler defense. These AFC Central-mates will meet again in three weeks.

**Kansas City, 27-San Diego, 22

(Monday) With 125 yards from Natrone Means in the first game and a rally from 13 points down in the second, the Chargers beat the Chiefs twice in '94, 20-6 and 14-13. A close game, but K.C.'s sharper.

(Open date: Atlanta, New Orleans, St. Louis, San Francisco)

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1995-3B

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

Nine months. Millions of taxpayer dollars invested.

A judicial system that is cajoled and humiliated.

The lives of jurors are suspended for nearly a year, if not more.

And after only four hours of jury deliberation, the verdict is in: O.J. Simpson is found not guilty in the murders of Ron Goldman and Nicole Brown Simpson.

The images flashed across the airwaves and into our living rooms as the verdict was announced were predictable. The black community, by and large, celebrated. The white community, by and large, was saddened and angry.

Above all others, however, was one horrific image that defined the entire spectacle. A group of African American women living in a shelter for battered women were shown rejoicing at the news Simpson was acquitted.

If there was ever a doubt before, this sordid reaction to Simpson's innocence firmly entrenched what most of us had been thinking. This case was not about truth, but of personalities and racism. It also affirmed the belief that money and power can indeed manipulate our justice system.

An exhausted jury made its decision, and whether one agrees or disagrees, it will not change.

However, what should not be permitted is for Simpson to be canonized by either the black, athletic or celebrity communities, as is already evidenced by some media reports. Although Simpson may have been acquitted of murder, he is an individual that has a history of spousal abuse. He remains a dangerous man.

That is what makes the celebration of Simpson's innocence, especially those at the women's shelter, so disturbing. Jubilation of any sort sends a message that spousal abuse is acceptable, as long as murder is not involved.

One can read from the celebrations that wife beating is now a justifiable act of violence. The strides made against domestic violence, and there have been many but not enough, have just been knocked back a notch.

Let's not forget the 911 call, when a terrified Nicole Simpson was obviously fearing for her life. How many other women have experienced that same fear?

But in the verdict's aftermath, victims of spousal abuse have been sent a message that they will receive no relief from a judicial system ostensibly designed to protect them. That is sad.

Other observations from the trial:

- The justice system is flawed and can be manipulated by slick attorneys. However, the system is the only one we have, and still the best around. It can, and must be changed from within.

- Lance Ito is apparently incompetent to judge even a beauty pageant. He lost control of this case before the opening arguments, and his once solid reputation as a juror now lay in ruins. Maybe his next career move should be Court TV.

- It has been proven again that we should not place individuals on a pedestal just because of their athletic abilities. Simpson was a hero to many, but only because of his mastery with a football, not for any humanitarian efforts. When we will learn athletes are not to be idolized for their athletic prowess?

- Do you really want your kid to grow up to be like O.J., or Dennis Rodman?

- Racism is still rampant in a country that likes to pretend otherwise. The reaction scenes from the verdict makes one wonder if this country is any more racially cohesive than it was in 1860. For Johnnie Cochran to say racism did not play a role is questionable at best.

- Tragically, our justice system went Hollywood. This case evolved more into a daytime soap opera than a function of justice.

- Even more tragically, the killer of two innocent people remains free.

A jury decided that Simpson is not the killer of his former wife and her acquaintance. Only he knows, and he must live with the answer.

But his previous acts of violence reminds us that he is a dangerous man. Do not revel in his innocence, only hope he receives the help he so desperately needs.

Simpson's once bright star crashed a summer ago as his white Bronco cruised along a Los Angeles freeway. Never again should it be allowed to regain its glimmer.

Last week's prep manu had a little something to satisfy everyone's palate. If you like blowouts, St. Stanislaus; 42-7 blowout of Mercy Cross was to your liking.

For suspense, Bay High's 21-20 victory over Oak Grove was an excellent entrée.

But for sheer excitement, Hancock High School was the place to be. The Hawks fell behind 41-7 at one point but then staged a furious rally that eventually brought Hancock to within six. Unfortunately, the rally came up short but fans certain received their money's worth.

JV Tigers oust Pirates

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The Bay St. Louis junior varsity Tigers defeated the Pass Christian Pirates 30-0, for the Tigers' twelfth win in a row.

Ronald Brown took a punt from the Pirates for 53 yards and a score in the first period. The PAT was no good, and the score was 6-0.

Late in the second quarter, Ronald Brown ran 31 yards for the score. A pass from Brent Richardson to Jason McKay was good for the two-point conversion. The score at halftime was 14-0.

Vidrine impressive at Sun Coast

Terry Vidrine of Slaughter, La., started from the second row, but moved to the front early in the race and made the rest look easy.

With a "for sale" sign on the wing of his car, he proceeded to dominate the rest of the 22-car field of "Winged" Cajun Sprints.

After each caution, Vidrine moved to a comfortable lead on the restart.

Lane Whittington made brief challenges on each restart, but Vidrine moved away in the straight-away. Whittington held on to second followed by Darrol Hyde and Glenn Clemet. Heat wins went to Harold Henderson, Whittington and Chris Thorton.

For the second week in a row, Bubba McQueen and Mitchell Williams led the 16-car Pro Stock lineup to the green flag. McQueen made up for his disastrous start of last week by moving to the front as the green flag dropped.

Williams applied the pressure, but McQueen went flag to flag for the win.

Jamie Luzenberg joined in on the three-car break-away, but he became stuck in the third spot. Donald Parker worked his way from the last spot to a fourth place finish. Heat wins went to Chet Morrison and Ray Broadus.

David Taylor shared the front row with Marus Jacob Jr. on the start of the Four-Cylinder Modified feature. Taylor moved to the front on the start followed by Jacob in the early going. Last week's winner David Allison managed to pass Jacob and give chase to Taylor, but could not take the lead as the checkers came out. Jacob managed to hold onto the third spot by holding off a persistent Jerry Farve.

In the Street Stock Division, Lonnie Scarbrough and Chuckie Smith led the 20-car field to the green flag. Scarbrough took the lead with Smith on his bumper. Scarbrough got a little loose coming out of turn two causing the two to make contact. This resulted in Scarbrough losing a left rear wheel, while Smith found himself on the rear of the field for the restart.

As a result, Mike Paillou picked up the lead followed by Rodney Bruce and Cliff Darby. This was the order of finish as the checkers flew allowing Paillou to claim his first win of the season. Rodney Barber and Angie West rounded out the top five finishers. Heat wins went to the father and son combination of Randy Deschamp and Randy Jr.

Mitchell Williams and Billy Joe Schonewitz started from the front row in the Late Model Sportsman feature. Although the field was smaller than usual, fans got a start-to-finish battle in driving skills. Schonewitz was fresh from the same situation in Hattiesburg Friday night with another longtime adversary, Tracy Brown.

This was Williams' second feature win in the Sportsman class in recent weeks. Heat winner Verlon Lee finished in the third spot.

David Scott picked up another heat and feature win in the Rookie Class to add to his growing number of wins. Danny Beauchamp and Steve Pate Jr. followed Scott to the checkered flag.

Lady Tigers head to state volleyball tourney

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The Bay High Lady Tiger volleyball team has finished its regular season and is now preparing for the state playoffs. The Lady Tigers, coached by Jan Latino, finished the season with an 8-4 record and a 5-3 mark in the district.

This is also the first year that Mississippi will have a state championship in volleyball. The Lady Tigers finished runner-up in Division VII/VIII narrowly defeating the Our Lady Academy Crescents. They will play their first state playoff game against St. Martin on October 7.

In preparation for the state tourney, Bay High has participated in a tournament at Southeastern Louisiana University in Hammond this past weekend.

The outstanding players throughout the season for Bay high were Chanda Haley and Tyelahana Jordan as hitters, Chanda Haley and Crystal Willis as servers, and Gigi Elmer and Brandi Scheuermann as defense.

Coach Latino commented on the season, "Our girls started the pre-season with a camp at the University of Southern Mississippi where they learned fundamentals and techniques from USM head coach Steve Dallman and assistant Sean Maily. The girls continued to put in the hard work and long hours to improve the level of play. And, at the end of the season they were rewarded. They have had a wonderful season."

The game against St. Martin will be played at St. Martin.

Hawkins deflected a fourth down pass by Oak Grove during the game's final seconds to secure the Bay High victory.

SSC wins St. Martin Invitational

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

Grant announced for MSU catfish research on Coast

A grant of $242,246 has been approved for fisheries research on the Gulf Coast, Mississippi's two U.S. senators announced. Senators Thad Cochran and Trent Lott (R-Miss.) said the Department of Agriculture was making the grant to Mississippi State University's Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station program.

MSU officials said the project involves research with wetlands to improve water quality for pond-raised catfish and could also be applicable to other types of fish in similar environments. Research specialists said the project also aims at improved density, stocking and reduction in energy costs for fish farming.

The research project is being done at MSU's Coastal Research and Extension Center in the Biloxi-Gulfport area.

The USDA funds were from the Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service's national research initiative competitive grant program, the agency said.

Senator Cochran, chairman of the Senate Appropriations panel on Agriculture and Rural Development, said, "This research is another example of Mississippi's leadership in an important and growing sector of our economy."

Biomedical research center to use space-derived technology

The Louisiana Technology Transfer Office (LTTO) at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center has once again facilitated the transfer of technology derived from the nation's space program into the private sector.

Through the LTTO, Stennis Space Center was contacted by the Pennington Biomedical Research Center in Baton Rouge, La. Opened in 1988, the Pennington Center consists of a diversified team of biomedical scientists whose research is focused on a single mission—promoting healthier lives through nutrition and preventive medicine.

Pennington conducts both short-term and long-term group nutritional studies. One long-term study under way is investigating the relationship between energy and food intake in elementary school children. In this study, the children's food intake is gathered and compared to their body composition measurements. Pennington will use this information to potentially report on the importance of establishing healthy eating patterns early in life.

SSC will assist Pennington clinical investigators and statisticians in gathering food intake data to validate the hardware and software prototype module in the near future.

"This type project illustrates the potential benefits that NASA technology can provide to the private sector," said Anne Johnson, NASA technology transfer officer at Stennis. "Such efforts can frequently result in the development of new products, as well as improvements in the quality of life."

"Hopefully, this project will allow us to acquire good data on food consumption from children," said Catherine Champagne, nutrient data systems scientist at Pennington.

"And if this is successful with kids, then I think we can get better data from many diverse population groups. Better data of food consumption patterns will improve the area of dietary assessments and influence nutrition recommendations on a national level, in regard to both general health recommendations and national feeding programs."

The Pennington Center is also working with NASA at the Johnson Space Center in Houston to study the loss of bone density that occurs in humans during extended periods of time in space.

The Louisiana Technology Transfer Office at Stennis is staffed by personnel from the Louisiana Business and Technology Center at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, under a contract from the Louisiana Department of Economic Development. The Louisiana Business and Technology Center also operates a small business incubator in Baton Rouge.

For more information about NASA Technology Transfer programs, contact Johnson at (601) 688-3757. For information about Louisiana's Technology Transfer Office at Stennis Space Center, contact Roy Keller at (604) 334-5555 or at (601) 688-1117.

We hope during this and future visits to Bay St. Louis you will discover our beaches, restaurants, galleries, antique and gift shops, gaming, historical sights, and most of all the wonderful citizens who make this city, "A Place Apart".

In four short years, A Place of Art has become one of the premier events on the Gulf Coast.
